Fruit-Dryers.

To the Editors of the Dispatch: Seeing what headway North Carolina is making in the dried-fruit business, sundry inquirles have come to the writer about the methods observed in that State in drying the fruit. Reference was made at once to a gentleman there who keeps the run of such things, and he replies as follows: "Our people, as far as my observations go, build their own dryers. Generally they are only a flue, roughly arched over with stones, and a cement or clay hearth on that to receive the fruit. A few are constructed somewhat like a plank-kiln, with sheet-iron drawers, bureau-like. The Alden steam-dryer was tried in two or three places in the State, but was abandoned. There is a sheet-iron bu-reau-like stove-dryer, made in Chicago, that I have heard well spoken of, but have never seen; and R. der's, made in Pennsylvania, looks well in the diagram, but as to its practical working I know nothing."

It occurred to me that the above might be of interest to your readers in the country (I learn they are very numerous), and so you are welcome to it. Very truly, O.

[For the Dispatch.] The Weevil in Wheat. ANSWER TO "WHEAT."

My observation during several years of handling wheat convinced me of three things—first, the weevil egg is laid in the grain of wheat by a fly; second, the time of the laying is after cutting and before threshing; third, the egg can be killed by one day's sunning of the threshed wheat, provided the wheat be spread not more than six inches deep-if deeper, more sun and stirring will be required. Let me add two facts: Wheat ought to be threshed as soon as possible after it is cut. This will give · the fly but little time to work. Again; all wheat ought to be sunned, and in some sections sunning is indispensable. Flour from sunned wheat will retain its life longer and make better bread, to say nothing of a better yield of flour and absence of weevils. R. T. H.

PROMPT REFORM OF BUDILY EVILS. The prompt reform of those bodily evils enfeebled digestion, incomplete assimilation, inactivity of the liver, kidneys, and bladder, as well as of the nervous symptoms which these allments are especially prone to beget, is always accomplished by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine accredited by physicians, pronounced pure by analysis, and eminently wholesome and agreeable. Surely such a restorative is preferable to aupalatable and indigestible mineral drugs and ansauctioned nostrams. The nation at large assuredly thinks so, judging by the unprecedented demand for the article from Maine to the Pacific, a demand now supplemented by immense orders for it received from tropical America Mexico, the British and Spanish Colomai possessions, and elsewhere. Auctioneer. business was taken up by Stuart M. Buck & Co., who purchased additional territory adjoining. A year ago the partnership was disselved and the business of vided. I took the new purchase, and have been working it under the name of East Bank. I prefer keeping my coal under that name, though it is from the same vein as the coal shipped from the old mine, and part of my workings are within a handred yards of the boundary line. If the parties supplying Mr. Hawes heve taken out a trade-mark on the word "Coalburgh," they are no doubt, correct in calling theirs the only "genuine"; but there are three mines now working on the same vein, and it is mainly a question of the preparation of the coal. I prefer to shid my coal as East Bank spinut, and not share its reputation with other splint from the same vein.

The view from the dwelling is a most lovely one. The access to it is by a first-rate road. The neighborhood equal to any in the county, and the healthiness of the place proveroial.

The other improvements are such as are needed for the place. There is an excellent and large ICE-HOUSE, and a pond adjoining. From the sale of ice alone a sum can amountly be realized equal to interest on the estimated value of the farm.

Those who wish to purchase a really desirable farm in sight of Richmond would do well to attend the sale.
